

“Burnout and resilience - a longitudinal and intervention study on medical students and physicians”

PI: Angela Fan (National Yang-Ming University)

Role: Co-principal investigator

National Science Council of Taiwan: 08/01/2016-07/31/2018

This study aims to investigate Taiwanese medical students and physicians in different years of school, training phase, medical professionalism, as well as burnout situation, causing of burnout, association and temporality of burnout and empathy in medical profession, and burnout resilience model. We will use the results of resilience research to create a local burnout prevention and intervention plan and test the efficacy of that plan.